Read the text and decide if each statement (1-10) is True (A), False (B) or Not Mentioned (C).

Taking a closer look at animals raised in factory farms, we come to understand that farm animals need our help.

A factory farm is a large industrial operation that raises large numbers of animals for food. It is a fact that over 99% of farm animals in the United States are raised in factory farms, which focus on profit and efficiency while treating animals with cruelty.

Approximately 8.5 billion chickens are killed for their meat every year in the U.S., while another 300 million chickens are used in egg production. All birds, from egg-laying hens and meat chickens to turkeys, ducks and geese are kept out from all animal protection laws. By the numbers, these are the animals most urgently in need of protection. The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA) is focused on making people aware of the unpleasant state of chickens raised for meat and is working actively with companies that buy or raise chickens.

Many people do not realize that the breed of chicken used for modern egg production is different from the breed used for meat production. If you put the two breeds of chicken next to each other though, they look almost nothing alike! Each has been raised according to a plan for hyper-production: egg-laying hens for high egg volume, and "meat" chickens for maximum breast meat. Unfortunately, both chicken types suffer from severe physical problems brought on by genetic control of their cells.
